

Who is the FCA?

Established by members of the Group of Seven in 1941 including Lawren Harris (pictured above), the Federation of Canadian Artists exists to further the education, appreciation and relevance of the visual arts in Canadian culture. With over 2,000 members across eleven Chapters in BC, Alberta and worldwide and growing, we're like no other art organization in Canada.

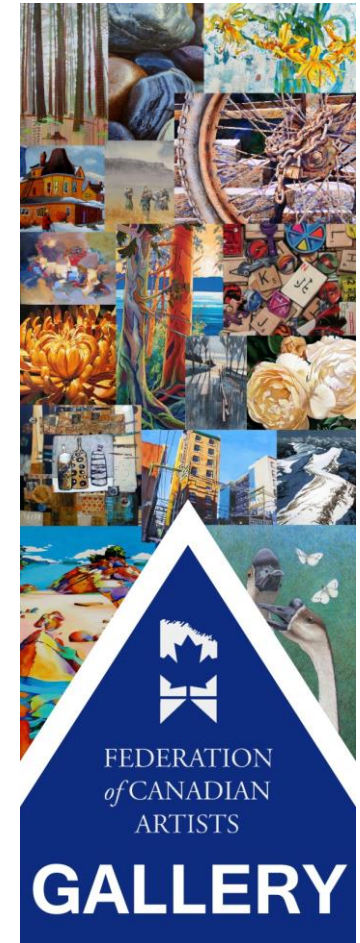

A registered non-profit charity, we display between 18 -22 exhibitions of member artwork per year from our Granville Island gallery. Through educational and professional development courses, we encourage and support the development of emerging and established artists.

Why Volunteer with the FCA?

Volunteering with the FCA is more than a rewarding way to meet like-minded people with similar interests. It is a meaningful way to utilize your skills and strengths to support our shared cultural community.

In return for your time, you'll be invited to special events, opening receptions and volunteer appreciations from barbecues to art gallery visits.

30 hours of volunteering also receives a subscription to Art Avenue magazine for one year.

Additionally, for volunteers who are with us for 30 hours or more, we'll write references and letters of recommendation to prospective employers and universities.

What do FCA volunteers do?

Volunteering with the FCA fits more than just your schedule, it fits your experience, skills, interests and career goals too!
