FEDERATION of CANADIAN
ARTISTS

Thank you for supporting the Federation of Canadian Artists with your purchase of this wall calendar.

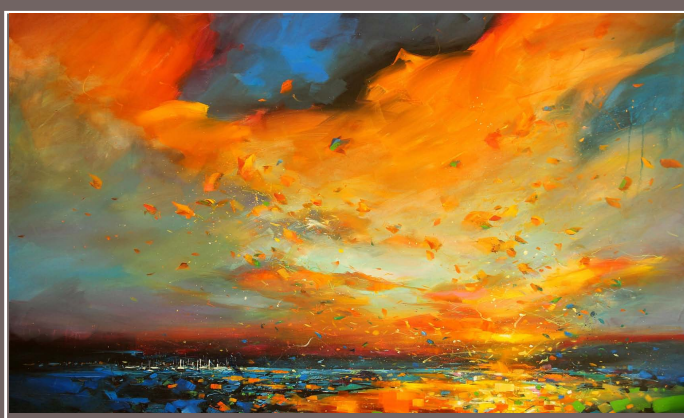

The Federation of Canadian Artists (FCA) is a non-profit visual arts charity. The organization was founded in 1941 by members of the group of Seven including Lawren Harris, A.Y. Jackson, Arthur Lismer, and J.E.H. MacDonald, as well as Emily Carr, Mark Kearley and other influential artists of the early 1940s. The FCA's aim is to promote and preserve the visual arts in Canada. We achieve this through the provision of services to emerging artists, established artists and the general public.

Today the FCA has grown to Canada's largest association of professional visual artists with over 2,700 members. Our members work in a wide variety of artistic styles and across many different mediums. Sales of this calendar assist the FCA in continuing to provide and improve upon the exhibition, educational, and networking opportunities we offer to members and the general public.

The paintings featured in this calendar were selected by a jury of peers as part of an exhibition called: "365". Member artists were encouraged to submit artworks for the chance to be featured in this calendar. In addition to this, artists competed for the chance to win cash prizes and feature in the online gallery for the exhibition and sale of their work.

You can view and purchase these and other works from our website:
